

WAYNE MULLER

Wayne Muller is a therapist, minister, community advocate, consultant, public speaker, and bestselling author of several books, including Sabbath, How, Then, Shall We Live? and most recently A Life of Being, Having and Doing Enough. The focus of his work is to liberate the latent strength and wisdom within people and institutions, nourishing the creative imagination, and deepening collaborative leadership through relationships rooted in mutual respect.

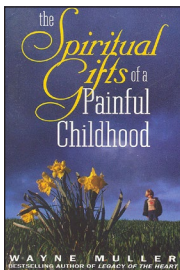

Working with people in local communities, churches and leaders of religious denominations, private corporations, healthcare networks and social change organizations, inspired Wayne to found Bread for the Journey, a network of local people engaged in grassroots, neighborhood philanthropy.

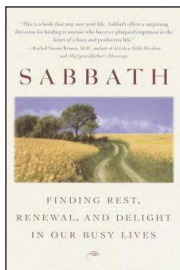

Wayne has been a regular contributor to Forbes, The Huffington Post, USA Today, and has been featured on Oprah, PBS and CNN. He lives in Santa Fe, New Mexico. You can learn more about Wayne at www.waynemuller.com and www.breadforthejourney.org.
